In the past several weeks, a number of controversial natural health doctors have died under mysterious circumstances. Some of them have even had recent encounters with federal agents and bureaucracies.

Two weeks ago, the string of mysterious deaths began when Dr. Jeff Bradstreet MD was found in a river with a gunshot wound to his chest. The police claim that the gunshot wound was self-inflicted and that the death was a suicide, however, Bradstreet's family suspects foul play.

Last week, members of the family set up a donation page “To find the answers to the many questions leading up to the death of Dr Bradstreet, including an exhaustive investigation into the possibility of foul play.”

In just one week, the page has already managed to raise over $25,000, many of those donations coming from former patients who were helped by Dr. Broadstreet’s controversial treatments.

Another death came on Fathers Day, June 21, when Dr. Bruce Hedendal DC Ph.D., of the Miami area, was found dead in his car with no explanation as to how it happened. As of right now, there are even fewer details about the circumstances surrounding Hedenal’s death as there are about the death of Broadstreet.

To make matters even more suspicious, both doctors have had run-ins with the feds due to their unconventional treatments, which had been known to help people. In fact, just weeks before his death Bradstreet’s office was raided by the FDA.

If two dead doctors in the same field, and same region of the country in such a short time span was not suspicious enough, Dr. Teresa Sievers, another natural health doctor from Florida, also died under mysterious circumstances earlier this week. According to Sievers’ website, she also specialized in holistic health treatments. She was allegedly murdered by an unknown attacker in an upscale neighborhood that experiences very little crime.

Each of these doctors were described as very healthy people with no major health problems, and no real reason for anyone to target them for murder, nor did they show any signs of depression.

BONITA SPRINGS DOCTOR FLORIDA MURDER TOP NEWS WINK NEWS

BONITA SPRINGS, Fla.- 8:02 PM — Lee County Sheriff's Office Detectives are continuing the homicide investigation at 27034 Jarvis Road in Bonita Springs.

Detectives with the Major Crimes Unit are pursuing several leads at this time and the investigation remains active.

Dr. Teresa Sievers was found dead Monday morning. More than 48 hours later, on Wednesday afternoon, the Sievers' Jarvis Road home is still taped off.

Dozens of training academy recruits, from the SWFL Public Service Academy, combed the home and surrounding area on Wednesday morning, helping detectives look for evidence. WINK News followed them across the street, to a nearby park, where they continued their search.

Also on scene earlier Wednesday, were members of Statewide Security. An employee tells WINK News the company did provide security for the Sievers' home, but that's all they would say.

Our cameras were rolling as the security company members put on gloves and booties and appeared to go inside the home.

Our partners at the News-Press spoke to Sievers' sister, who said she returned to Southwest Florida early from a family vacation, and was found dead a day later.

As the investigation continues, neighbors say they are hoping detectives will have a break in the case soon.

"Whoever expects to have something like this happen so our thoughts and prayers are with the children and with the spouse and even with the person who did this, because they had to be desperate or not well. That's where my mind is, instead of being afraid. I trust the deputies," said Carol Cook-Moore, a neighbor.

Another neighbor tells WINK, she heard a shrill sometime around 5 in the morning on Monday. Still another says he heard a man's voice shouting, shortly after that, coming from the direction of the Sievers' home.

There are still a lot of unanswered questions about how she was killed and if deputies have any persons of interest. We've been asking the sheriff's office all along, whether they think this is a random crime or targeted, they haven't answered.

Family and friends have set up fundraising accounts. If you'd like to help, click here to donate to the GoFundMe page. It was opened Monday by Sievers' colleague Lenka Spiska, a licensed massage therapist and intuitologist.

A former patient of Sievers has also set up an account in her name at Capital Bank Brooks Grande Plaza located at 8100 Health Park Center Blvd. in Bonita Springs.
