

Laima on a mission

By Laima Jonusiene, www.buksveikas.com

We live in a fast paced world where immediate results are yearned for. If we are sick, we want to have a prescription within hours and medicine to cure our symptoms in a day or so. We do not care about the cause of a disease. We want the symptoms to go away. But is this Health Care. Do we have a choice of natural versus synthetic drugs?

All over the world citizens are endlessly relying on the power of medicine. We all want to make sure our loved ones are healthy, and decline to believe that modern medicine could actually harm them.

For years, modern medicine has ruled Western culture. It has become part of our customs as we continuously obtain medicine on a daily basis. From a simple dose of aspirin to more intense treatments like chemotherapy and daily medical visits, we cannot help but feel drawn to such assistance. After all, medicine has the ability to heal, fix, and alleviate problems that afflict billions of people each year. So why not jump on the bandwagon and hand over your life to modern medicine? Think before you leap. There is evidence for synthetic drugs but side effects for being harsh. There is a logic of natural medicine but little evidence. And there are liars in both camps ready to lie to make money.

It is a known fact that we live in a fast paced world where immediate results are craved.

If we are sick, we want to have a prescription within hours and medicine to cure us in a day or so. Due to the fact that the safety of medicine has seemingly been around for us, it becomes a false theme to rely on such safe treatments. Since we know that there are medicines out there, we want the symptom to be alleviated as soon as possible.

While there are those who are against modern medicine, it is clear that this type of medical treatment has come a long way but risk has developed along side. With hundreds of medicines dedicated to incurable illnesses, it is a miracle for some and a disaster for others. Natural medicine claims miracles but education of statistics makes it not visible to the people. We now finally have the opportunity to feel better with natural or synthetic treatments, and know that there are things being done to help the sick. But with opportunity, comes a bitter battle. Due to the fact that the media is one of the largest outlets for the world, advertising has taken over modern medicine and has turned it into a dangerous spectacle. And so many of these commercials are deceptive. People can lie to make money. Natural Medicine people lie more. We all see the commercials for sleeping pills, testimonials for cancer drugs, the suggestions for dieting. We become drawn into these seemingly safe treatments, because we are in desperate need for a cure. Unfortunately, this desperation often turns into blindness. We believe whatever we read and often only read what we believe. We immediately run to our local pharmacy or natural health food store and pick up these pills, without taking a glance at the label or the warnings. The media has allowed us to believe every word they say, and in return, trust the FDA, the doctors who prescribe such medications, and the advertisements natural or synthetic. After all, who would actually want to lie to us? Why would any loyal physician, naturopath and medical companies do such a thing?

Astonishingly, our trust is feeding into the lies and helping such modern medicine suppliers become prosperous. Thousands of people die each year, just because the medicine they were taking was not as safe as people claimed. There are always problems with certain prescriptions on the markets, but many of these companies do not want to say anything. They write it off, pretend to not know the truth, and ship it out, because soon they will have enough money to forget. Due to their selfishness, modern medicine and natural medicine have become quite faulty in some aspects. It has forced us to question what medicines we are taking, and what effects they could actually have on us. Just because they are FDA approved, does not mean that they are 100% safe. We need to know that the side effects are not tested in a study. Although modern medicine is one of the largest industries in the world, it is not the only option. Herbal remedies and traditional medicine are also rising steadily, as it is more focused on herbs, safe nutrients and minerals that will not have hazardous effects on the body. With the ability to extract such benefits from plants, it is surprising that the majority of people do not want to stick to such safe routes.

Both sides have value, both sides have insight. Both sides have pluses both sides weakness. And there are people on both sides lying to make money. It is my purpose and desire to expose those who lie and show the truth to the public. Someone needs to take the due diligence to ask the needed questions and expose the frauds be they natural or synthetic in belief. The guilty party is not natural or synthetic. Each has its truth and each has its value. The guilty party is the liars who lie and I want to expose them where I can. People need freedom to choose and that must include truthful information to make an informed choice. But greed has drive people to tell lies, scheme fraud, and attack good people. We will try to bring you good clear info and expose the liars.
