Love Comes In All Forms And Sizes

Gavin, 45 has always had a love of dolls ever since he saw his little sister playing with them as a child. Never in to playing with Action Men, instead preferring Barbie's, his mum was always a little concerned.

40 years later and he has ended up marrying, a woman which he describes as the love of his life. The woman is in fact a mannequin doll he spotted a year ago in a clothing store close to his house.

With blonde luscious locks and an enviable figure, Gavin was attracted to her beautiful curves and smile.

Mary, 35, the manager of the high fashion clothing store situated close to Gavin's house in Stratford-on-Avon, was initially surprised to hear Gavin had taken an interest to her doll.

She stated, "He would look for hours outside the shop window, then slowly he gained courage to come and talk to her."

The doll, whom Gavin called Barbara, is now living with him, sharing a bed, sitting at the table to eat with him and all the activities a man would want from his wife. Besides the fact she cannot cook a meal, he said she is a great companion and a good listener.

Gavin even buys Barbara lavish gifts such as beautiful outfits that he buys from special stores for mannequins. His family at first, were obviously a little bit surprised, but slowly came round to the situation.

Gavin's sister says, "As long as he is happy, then we are."

Gavin plans to marry Barbara in a local pub in the coming months.

Put it this way, at least she can put her feet up after a hard day instead of standing all day on a shop floor
